Quick Tour of Weibull++

Weibull++ offers the most comprehensive toolset available for reliability life data analysis, with support for all life data types and all commonly used product lifetime distributions.

Accelerated Life Testing (ALTA) and Accelerated Life Testing PRO (ALTA PRO) utilize powerful life-stress relationship models to design and analyze data from accelerated life tests.

Reliability Growth (RGA) supports all of the major reliability growth models and can analyze data from both developmental testing and fielded repairable systems. It also includes a comprehensive toolset for advanced reliability growth projections, planning and management.

These applications are also packed with tools for related reliability analysis such as degradation data analysis, stress-strength comparison, reliability test design and design of experiments (DOE). In addition, Weibull++ also supports warranty data analysis, non-parametric data analysis and recurrent event data analysis.

For life data and life-stress data analysis, you can use this application to answer a wide variety of questions such as:

- How many units do you need to test? How much test time? At which stress levels?
- Will the product meet the reliability requirement?
- What is the influence of different failure modes? How does accelerated stress affect life?
- Which design (or supplier) will be more cost-effective over time?
- How many units are likely to be returned under warranty?
- Is there an emerging reliability problem in the field? With a particular supplier? In a particular region?
- When will a crack, wear, etc. degrade to the point of failure?
- What is the typical time to repair? How effective are the repairs?

For growth data analysis, you can use this application to answer a wide variety of questions, such as:

- Will the product meet the MTBF goal? How much test time is required?
- How does the product perform across different test phases? At which phase will the product meet the reliability requirement? What is the initial MTBF?
- How do the test data compare to the reliability growth test plan?
- What failure modes should be fixed and when?
- What is the optimum growth maintenance strategy? When is the best time to schedule maintenance/overhauls?

Note: For detailed examples for some common life data analysis features, refer to https://help.reliasoft.com/weibull\_quickstart/content/quickstart/quick\_start\_introduction.htm.

Using Databases and Projects

File Menu

Use commands on the File menu (New, Recent or Open Database) to create or open a database).

Each database supports simultaneous access by multiple users. If you have admin permissions, use File > Manage Database to control user access and manage configurable settings that apply throughout the database.

Use File > Help to access online help and shipped examples.

Project List

Each database can contain multiple projects. Use the project list to create or open a project.

If you have a lot of projects:

- Use the project filter to limit what's displayed.
- Use the project category to group projects within the list.

Current Project Explorer

Use the current project explorer to create or open analyses and reports.

You can open the same project in any ReliaSoft desktop application. Analyses and reports are visible only in the application(s) that can edit them:

- Life data folios are visible only in Weibull++
- Fault trees are visible only in BlockSim
- FMEAs are visible only in XFMEA/RCM++
- Etc.

Common features such as resources and project attachments are visible in all ReliaSoft desktop applications.

Using Life Data Folios

Weibull++'s life data folio allows you to fit a statistical distribution to failure time data in order to understand the reliability performance of a product over time or to make projections about future behavior. From the analysis, you can obtain reliability information about a product such as probability of failure, reliability, mean life or failure rate.

The basic steps for using a life data folio are:

1. Add life data folio

Right-click the Life Data folder in the current project explorer and choose Add Life Data.

In the setup window, select the desired data type and the units for time/usage values (hours, cycles, etc.).

Data Sheet Options
Specify the type of data that you will be entering into the folio for life data analysis.

Data Type

Times-to-failure data       Free-form (probit) data

Units
Hour (hr)

Options for the Times-to-Failure Data Type

My data contains units that did not fail (suspensions/right censored data)
Select this if your data set contains units that are being evaluated as having not failed.

My data set contains units with an uncertain failure time (interval/left censored data)
Select this if your data set contains uncertainty as to exactly when a unit failed or was suspended within a specified interval. This allows you to specify the time frame in which each failure and/or suspension occurred.

My data set contains rows that represent multiple units (Grouped data)
 Select this if your data set contains groups of units that contain the same time-to-failure and/or suspension times.

Based on your selections, the data sheet will include these failure/suspension time columns:

Using Life-Stress Data Folios

Weibull++'s life-stress data folio allows you to perform quantitative accelerated life testing data analysis. In this analysis, you extrapolate a product's failure behavior at normal conditions from life data obtained at accelerated stress levels. Since products fail more quickly at accelerated stress levels, the analysis allows you to obtain reliability information about a product (e.g., mean life, probability of failure at a specific time, etc.) in a shorter time.

The basic steps for using a life-stress data folio are:

1. Add life-stress data folio

Right-click the Life-Stress Data folder in the current project explorer and choose Add Life-Stress Data.

In the setup window, select the desired censoring type and units for time/usage values (hours, cycles, etc.).

Select Stress Columns

Define the stress columns that will appear in the data sheet, and specify the use stress level(s). The following table contains some commonly used stress types, but you can change any of the labels (e.g., if your vibration values use meters per second squared instead of hertz, you can change Hz to m/s<sup>2</sup>).

More Analyses and Tools

Warranty Data Analysis

For life data analysis, the warranty folio offers a choice of 4 data entry formats that use sales and returns data to predict future returns under warranty: Nevada, Times-to-Failure, Dates of Failure and Usage.

Degradation

For life data and life-stress analyses, the degradation folio extrapolates expected failure times based on how a performance measure (e.g., crack propagation, tread depth, vibration) has degraded over time.

Recurrent Event Data Analysis

For life data analysis, the non-parametric RDA folio uses the Mean Cumulative Function to plot the average number of recurring failures over a given period of time. The parametric RDA folio uses the General Renewal Process (GRP) model, which considers the effectiveness of repairs, to model the cumulative number of failures over time.

Design of Experiments

A set of design folios provide techniques for DOE analyses such as identifying key factors that affect performance (standard design), minimizing a system's sensitivity to noise (robust design) and determining the best proportion of components in a mixture (mixture design).

Monte Carlo Data Generation and SimuMatic

For life data and life-stress data analyses, the Monte Carlo utility generates a data set based on a specified probability distribution. SimuMatic performs analyses on a large number of simulated data sets, based on a specified probability distribution. For growth data analysis, the Monte Carlo utility generates a data set based on the Crow-AMSAA model, with specified beta and lambda parameters while SimuMatic performs analyses on a large number of simulated data sets, based on the Crow-AMSAA model.

The life data versions look like this:

Comparison Folios

The life comparison folio determines the probability that the life of one population will be greater or less than that of the second. The stress-strength analysis folio determines the probability of failure based on the probability of stress exceeding strength.

Test Design

For life data analysis, Weibull++ offers a choice of tools to assist with reliability test design: Reliability Demonstration Test (Parametric Binomial, Non-Parametric Binomial, Exponential Chi-Squared or Non-Parametric Bayesian), Expected Failure Times Plot and Difference Detection Matrix. For growth data analysis, the Test Design folio uses the non-homogeneous Poisson process (NHPP) to design a demonstration test for repairable systems by solving for either the test time required per system or the number of systems that must be tested.

The screenshot displays the 'Test Design Folio1' window, which is divided into several sections:

- Design 1 Mean Life: A table showing the relationship between Design 1 Mean Life (columns: 300, 600, 900, 1200, 1500, 1800, 2100, 2400, 2700, 3000) and Design 2 Mean Life (rows: 300, 600, 900, 1200, 1500, 1800, 2100, 2400). The cells are colored red or black based on the test design results.
- Expected Failure Times: A plot titled 'Units vs. Time' showing a curve representing the expected failure times.
- Parametric Binomial: A dialog box for designing a reliability demonstration test. It includes fields for:

Target Reliability Planner

For life data analysis, the Target Reliability folio finds the optimum cost and reliability of a product, given estimates for various factors involved in the product’s production and sale.

Maintenance Planning

For life data analysis, the Maintenance Planning folio uses the optimum replacement age model to determine the most cost-effective time to replace aged components.

Growth Planning

For growth data analysis, the growth planning folio helps you to create a multi-phase reliability growth testing program that is designed to achieve a specific MTBF or reliability goal.

Multi-Phase Plot

For growth data analysis, the multi-phase plot displays actual test results (e.g., demonstrated, projected and growth potential MTBF or failure intensity) across multiple analysis points and/or test phases. It can be linked to a growth planning folio to compare actual test results against the test plan.

Mission Profiles

For growth data analysis, mission profiles help to create a balanced operational test plan and track the actual testing against the plan to make sure the data will be suitable for reliability growth analysis.

9. Artificial Intelligence ("AI") Tools

9.1 Parts of the Software may have been developed using AI-assisted tools or services, including tools provided by third parties. Such use does not diminish Licensor’s obligations under this Agreement. Licensor retains all intellectual property rights in the Software, subject to the licenses granted herein, regardless of whether AI-assisted tools were used in its development.

9.2 Licensor will use AI-assisted tools in a manner intended to comply with applicable laws, including copyright and data protection requirements, and will take reasonable steps to keep records of such use where necessary to meet legal or regulatory obligations.

9.3 Licensor takes reasonable measures to review and validate AI-generated code integrated into the Software, including applying human oversight where appropriate, prior to release.

9.4 While Licensor applies quality assurance measures, parts of the Software, including the parts which were created with AI-assisted tools, may still contain errors, inaccuracies, or vulnerabilities. Licensor will therefore provide updates and new versions, which You are under the obligation to install upon release, to maintain the functionality and security of the products. Furthermore, you are under the obligation to inform the Licensor of any error, inaccuracy or vulnerability you encounter, to ensure that Licensor can fulfil its market observation obligation. Licensor disclaims any warranty that the software is entirely error-free or fit for a particular purpose beyond what is expressly stated in this Agreement.

9.5 You are hereby informed that Licensor may make available to You access to AI tools as part of the licensed Software Product, including tools based on solutions developed by third parties such as Azure OpenAI operated by Microsoft Corporation. The Licensor disclaims all conditions, warranties, representations or other terms, express or implied as to the results generated by AI tools, their accuracy, correctness or fitness for any particular purpose. You agree not to use such AI outputs as the sole basis for any decision, particularly where consequences may be legal, financial or safety-related. It shall be solely Your responsibility to read and comply with the terms and conditions of use of the relevant AI tools as communicated by the relevant AI solutions developer, as well as to review and validate the accuracy of any content generated from such AI tools. You further agree that You shall not use any AI outputs in a manner that violates any applicable laws or regulations, infringes any intellectual property, privacy or other rights of any third party, or misleads others as to the origin or nature of such content.

10.5 The Licensor shall not be liable under the said warranty above if the Software Product fails to operate in accordance with the said warranty as a result of any modification, variation or addition to the Software Product not performed by the Licensor or caused by any abuse, corruption or incorrect use of the Software Product, including use of the Software Product with equipment or other software which is incompatible.

10.6 All other conditions, warranties or other terms which might have effect or be implied or incorporated into this License Agreement or any collateral contract, whether by statute, common law or otherwise, are hereby excluded, including, without limitation, the implied conditions, warranties or other terms as to satisfactory quality, fitness for purpose or the use of reasonable skill and care.
